

PAINTINGS AND VARIETIES.

Less Exhibition of Paintings at the New York Athlete Club.

The picture galleries of the New York Athletic Club are not large, and on Saturday, at the opening of the eighth annual art loan exhibition, a veritable mob of well-dressed young women was turned loose into them. The thirty-fourth ladies' day had occurred at the same time. There was a variety performance of juggling, dancing, waddling, slight of hand, and recitations in an upper hall, to which such performers as Musical Dale, Prince Kokin, Mr. Burdett, the Misses Hengler, Mabel Steppen, Powell, and Miss Ruth Davenport contributed, and there was orchestral music all the afternoon.

The Art Committee consists of Messrs. Thomas E. Kirby, S. T. Shaw, and C. C. Curran. They provided 47 paintings for the entertainment of their friends. By F. S. Church is a large semi-oval canvas, intended apparently for an archway decoration, representing two white bears with the foibles of a lot of other bears bouncing about and looking on. It is called "Touché," and is in Mr. Church's family-in-a-futile-frustrated dream. "A Path Through the Pines," by George Inness, is a large picture, strong and serious, a daring and composition and handling quite unusual in color. Mr. Frank B. DuMond's "Christ and the Fisherman" is another of his unpeaceful excursions into an unattractive realm in art. His Christ is a ghostly and unpleasant conception, but the bearded old fisherman is shown in due form. "The Last Supper on the Ground," by Mr. Max Ward, has a richly decorative and voluptuous "Ecce Homo" in which, however, his flesh parts over him. A very pleasing painting called "Mariana," by Mr. E. A. Bell, of a young woman lounging in a window seat. Miss Maria Thompson, a young woman, dressed in black and in an ebony frame. "Mental Conflict" is its title, and the fair young widow is plainly at war with the conflict between her love for her dead husband and her love drawn in the present direction. There seems to be but one step further that Mr. Beckwith can go, and it is to paint the dead man's ghost. Mr. Kenyon Cox's "Sketch" of a deathly woman, disrobed and sprawling, is rather ladylike, non-narrative, and Mr. Wachman and Mr. Alden Weir are represented by very satisfactory impressions, the one of Niagara Falls and the other of "The Great Beyond the Clouds."

"Souvenirs of the World's Columbian Fair" by Mr. Alexander Harrison and Mr. E. M. Blackall have good pictures of the surf, while Mr. Morris, Carl Schenck, George Canna, Frank De Haven, Herbert Denman, Charles Warren Eaton, Bolton Jones, Judith Fiske, and Arthur G. Smith, and F. E. M. Reilly and H. P. Smith, Carlton Wiggin and William H. Howe have excellent little pieces. There is a picture of "South African Champs" and another of "Souvenirs of the World's Columbian Fair" by C. Curran. Other exhibitors are: H. Blum, J. C. Green, Eliot Johnson, E. H. Dearle, Frederick Dilman, J. W. Fickett, August Franzon, Arthur Hooper, Francis L. Jackson, John Joseph, J. W. Newcomb, Theo. Robinson, Henry Prillwitz, Horatio Walker, and William J. Whittemore.

PRESIDENT M'LIGUE RESIGNS.

His Seal for the Green Flag Canceled Talk East St. Patrick's Day.

Postmaster Andrew McGlure, at whose order the Stars and Stripes were hauled down from the Town Hall in Fair Rockaway last St. Patrick's Day to make room for the green flag, has resigned as President of the village. The incident created indignation in Fair Rockaway at the time, and shortly afterward the Board of Trustees, who were responsible, disavowed all responsibility for the order, which they asserted emanated solely in the President of the village. In explaining his reason for resigning, the Postmaster said: "I am the Postmaster and I have no desire that he has discovered that he cannot legally hold both offices."

Eastern Slides at the Photographic Show.

The show of the Society of Amateur Photographers at the Fine Arts Galleries is attracting many visitors, and the lantern slides exhibited on Friday evening were a great attraction. The Rev. E. G. Boileau, James Wells Champney, and Mr. William C. Murray have taken turns in describing them.

At the evening meeting the racing scenes were shown, the series including the latest news of the racing cruise of the New York Yacht Club last summer, and also pictures of the "Vigilant," "Constellation," "Wasp," "Harpone," "Queen Mat," "Pilgrim," and "Justice" under full sail.

Wounded by a Highwayman in Williamsburgh.

Charles Gross, aged 40, of 277 Driggs avenue, Williamsburgh, while on his way home walking along Nostrand avenue early yesterday morning was attacked by an unknown man near the corner of Nostrand and Flushing avenues at 9 o'clock. The highwayman attempted to rob him, but he fought him off, a policeman heard Gross shouting and found him alone with a cut on the forehead. Gross was taken to a hospital, and after being dressed was dressed by an ambulance surgeon Gross went home. He couldn't give a description of his assailant.

No More Gravesend Execution Indictments.

No more election offence indictments are to be found against the officials or residents of Gravesend. It was the intention of E. M. Webb, Col. Lamb, and Jerry A. Werber, the lawmen who prosecuted Gravesend election cases, to call special Grand Jury in May next for the purpose of indicting some of the men who are now in prison, and to indict some officials of Gravesend. After consultation with the lawmen, they have decided to let the matter rest. They that cannot get enough evidence to convict the men they had their eyes on.

To the Real Estate Field.

A very fair business in all descriptions of property has been reported during the week. There have been no perceptible changes in values.

Books' sales include:

For the advertisement of the Ariel Advertising Company, which is about to be incorporated, to report, is composed of well-known theatrical people, among whom Burgess is named, of No. 116 to 120 West Thirty-fourth Street, 10100 feet, on the south side, 16.71 feet west Broadway, the site of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, for which a new building is being erected on West End avenue, at $250,000. No. 126 West, Third Avenue, three-story brick building, 100 feet wide, 100 feet deep, for 1000 feet front, for $100,000. Mrs. Newell, of No. 126, has sold the property to Mr. Robert Newell, of No. 126, who has a large brick building on Thirty-third street, about the same distance from Broadway, on a plot 125 feet front, 100 feet deep, for $100,000. The building was sold by the heirs of Mrs. Jane Avery, who died in 1875, and left the property to her son, John J. Avery, who died in 1885. The building was sold by the great-grandfather of the present generation, about 150 years ago, for $100,000. The building is in good condition, has a gross area of $60,000. A new signature impression of the Ariel Advertising Company, and a bill of sale, it is reported, has been issued, with an estimated cost of $100,000 on the site.
